20 pts Questions Cognitive: (Wow, I learn?... Ok that is deep!)

- Why is this week's topic important for teamwork?
This week's topic is about leadership. Brother Clements taught us the importance of leadership, what it means to be a leader, and leadership in the Lord's way. I think that learning about leadership is important. We are a leader of our own and having the characteristics of a good leader even without being a leader of the group, will greatly help the team.
- How do plan on contributing to the team, besides completing your tasks?
I plan to be a good leader to myself, and I want to exercise the principles in President Kim B. Clark's talk, "Leadership with a Small 'L'" I want to lead by example, lead with vision, and lead with love.
- How does your experience relate to other experiences you have had?
I have had experience with a great leader and a not so great leaders. I noticed that when the leader is great, the team will work great while people tend to not work together or take over the not-so-great leader. Now that I know how to be a great leader, I want to apply the principles of a great leader both in a team and in my family.
- Tell me about what you taught someone? And what did they learn that they didn't know before?
I taught my friend, Matt, about leadership. He knows how to be a great leader and the principles of how to be a great leader but was not aware of it. We talked about leading in the Lord's way and how important it is to serve and lead in the way of the Lord.
- If this was a religion class, how would you relate this week's topic to the gospel?
We are taught that we are all leaders. We are also taught to lead in the Lord's way, to lead in righteousness. When we practice the principles and lead in the Lord's way, our team will prosper in everything that you do.
